SOCIAL CAPITAL IN THE DIGITAL AGE

MARIAM CHAKHVADZE

FREE WEBINAR

This presentation aims at contributing to the research about the impact of the digitalization on business models. Intensive introduction of information and communication technologies in public services changes the interaction between various actors and created new forms of networking (Jafari, Moharami, 2019). Digitalization of the social capital enabled to link together the communities that otherwise would be confronted with the risk of being disconnected (Circular Conversation, 2020). The new constellations demonstrate the relevance of conceptualizing digital social capital and analyze its influence over the navigation towards more resilient economic transition.

MARIAM CHAKHVADZE

I am Mariam Chakhvadze born on 22.10.1988 in Georgia Tbilisi. In 2019 I got my master's degree in National and International Administration and Policy at the University of Potsdam. Since then, I have been working on the PhD-thesis The Role of Co-Production in Public Service Delivery: Vocational Education and Training in Georgia and Germany (University of Potsdam). The research is conducted in the framework of the scholarship from Konrad Adenauer foundation.

I am also actively involved in the project called Grenzenlos / Across Boundaries. The project is offered by the World University Service (WUS). It is a cooperation between vocational schools and the guest speakers – students from Africa, Asia, and Latin America. The cooperation aims at empowering the responsibility towards sustainable development in vocational schools and support the intercultural relations.
